Well honey, when you coming home?
Oh baby, when you coming home?
There's a fire in the kitchen, a fire in the bed
One needs putting out, other one must be fed

You've been gone so long, I wanna kiss your face
Screen door slams into an empty space
No one's here to talk to, do I really make a sound alone?
Oh baby, when you coming home?

Well honey, how long you gonna stay?
Oh baby, how long you think you'll stay?
We'll be laughing with some friends, fall asleep watching TV
For the first few days, let's just make it you and me

You've been away so long, you were just right here
Well, some dreams fade, don't disappear Waking up in the morning, still holding on to the telephone
Oh baby, when you coming home?

Right now I close my eyes in sight
I'll hold you, my arms are so tight
Well, I believe, I do believe, I hear your voice a little clearer
I believe, just believe and you're right here

When I open my eyes, kiss my face
Tears and laughter fill time and space
We're all dreamers of this world
And you and me, we're a lifelong poem
Oh baby, when you coming home?

Oh, wish me home
Oh, wish me home
