well honey, when you comin home oh baby, when you comin home there's a fire in the kitchen a fire in the bed
one needs puttin out other one must be fed you've been gone so long i wanna kiss your face screen door slams into an empty space no one's here to talk to do i really make a sound alone?

well honey, how long you gonna stay oh baby, how long you think you'll stay we'll be laughin with some friends fall asleep watchin tv for the first few days, let's just make it you and me you've been away so long you were just right here well some dreams fade, don't disappear wakin up in the mornin still holding on to the telephone

right now, i close my eyes in sight i'll hold you in my arms so tight well i believe, i do believe i hear your voice a little clearer i believe, just believe you're right here when i open my eyes, kiss my face tears and laughter fill time and space we're all dreamers of this world and you and me we're a lifelong poem

oh, wish me home
oh, wish me home
