The winter months left us the snowfall
A black spring brought forth the rain
The summer days were long and dusty
By the fall your mind was made

And I recall we were lovers
They'll always be the good old days
The world back then was something simple
We laughed and danced in fond embrace

But people change like seasons do
This life we live is an open door
That was the fate of me and you
May you find what you're looking for

I never meant to hold you down
I've only found the words to say
It's plain to see that you were restless
I'm glad I stepped out of the way

I'll never know these endless seasons
I only see the way things are
We can only go on living
All the answers lie written in the stars

We can only go on loving
All the answers lie written in the stars
I'll never know these endless seasons
All the answers lie written in the stars
