By Father Burkhardt

Pressure....

All around me.

Pressure....

It surrounds me.

Pressure....

Flowing through me.

Pressure....

Just Bite Me!

Break the skin and your in Sucking my blood like a leach
I'm way out of reach
Life's so unfair, so what I don't care
Life's a paradise, I just don't understand Life and death, walking hand in hand
Freedom of Speech is a rare thing
Struggling each day to sing
To sing this life through
All life found true
True as the sky in the air
True as the strong scent of despair
Pressure to do right or wrong
Pressure to fuck or smoke a bong
Whether life could be this bleak
Or is it, could it possibly this weak?
As weak as a stillborn baby
As weak as one's last breath
Religions one and all
Whether Muslims or Jews
All faiths have their own spews.
Weak and the strong

Both are all wrong
Whether I'm living my life all wrong
I'm living my life and it's my own
Life's a paradox that I don't understand
A paradox that is completely out of demand
Truth and lies are all the same
In this sad cruel world we live in Love and lust are just the same but one true and the other is just lame True love is a question we all ask of ourselves to make us complete, no one knows Life and death are very similar yet they don't feel very familiar.

Week of cold hearts pounding against our chest, years of torment running down our breasts.

Hearts of Gold, Hearts so Cold Does it even begin to make sense with the young and the old

Truth is but one faction of life but lies are the most true of either faction.

Lies of old and new.
Lives of money and despair

That's all society thrives on.
That's all society lives on.
That's all society is driven by.

So I say this is passing what is this world coming to when all we care about is who's who's views.

Thanks for hearing me out
I love discussing despair and doubt But as I close remember dead are those who live on destruction or phat clothes.

The more I think about it the more it appears that this world is full of wonder and doubt and the ability to seek God out.
