Trip and stumble on the sidewalk
They're laughing at me stutter when i talk
they're laughing at me
Don't know the definition of the word QUIET
They're laughing at me
Body shaking uncontrollably
they're laughing at me
don't wear the right clothes
they're laughing at me Asking because I can't comprehend
they're laughing at me
have to go to LD class
never went to regular school
they're laughing at me

They just don't understand me hardly comprehend me abusive words they use but in the end they always lose frightened by the world around them I forgive them.
If only they could experience the life I'm living, Id think they would be a little more forgiving

Sticks and Stones will break your bones but words will always hurt you They laugh at us with our disabilities call it an inability to live right in this world in this world hostility and aggression we have got to stand against the oppression cold hearts deserve what they get we stand tall and try to forget to forget what they've done to us us who live in this world today us who live in this world afraid afraid of the hidden things in this world afraid of themselves and the whole world depression sets in and they lose they're living again their hearts beat fast against the clock tick... tock... tick... tock... hearts about to explode somebody has got to know that unless something is done the life we are living cannot be undone
