Still a tear running along my cheek
Still a memory running through my head
A fall to the ground would end this misery
No, I've still got hope

Walking away from this place, I still breathe
I see the stars up in the sky, they are telling me that
Be strong, it will carry on but everything has an end
Fight against the demons that are taking over you

Before it's too late...

Still a tear running along my cheek
I still remember the last thing you said
A pulled trigger would end this misery
No, the hope is still left, they are telling me

Be strong, it will carry on but everything has an end
Fight against the demons that are taking over you

Before it's too late...

"Oh, please, leave me alone!"
"Get out off my head!"
The screams are a sign of one thing

It is too late...

No more tears running along my cheek
No more memories inside my head
A fall to the ground has end it all for me
But it has also started a new misery
