there's nothing you can do to take the pain away you may find broken dreams are the price of the games we play closing the door, you hope the world will disappear then you can open your eyes and you find everyone's still here

don't you know
weren't you told?

first they build you up
just to knock you down
steal the crown of the hero from yesterday were you flying high just before the fall? did they make you a king just to take it all?
players only play till the curtain falls

hero
they couldn't let you go there's no way out in time they'd only let you grow to cut you down to size no room for tears when you've gone down in history no acclaim when your finest hour is just a memory

we can dream our dreams but who knows if they'll fade away like heroes

first they build you up
were you flying high just before the fall?
we all dream the dreams of heroes
