I wake up in the darkness, the clock says 3 AM There's a war raging inside me, so I reach for my old friend
The one who's always been there, to make the pain all disappear
I write another song, another song nobody will hear

This damn guitar knows all my secrets, all my broken dreams
All the joy and all the laughter that I have ever seen
The one who stood beside me, been together all these years
Let's write another song, another song nobody will hear

Another song about redemption, another song of broken trust Another song about those golden rings that turned to rust
I got pages full of memories, I can see them all so clear
I write another song, another song nobody will hear

I came down here to Nashville with a million tales to tell The first thing that I found out was that the truth don't always sell
They want songs about the back roads, and tractors, trucks and beers
While I write another song, another song nobody will hear

Another song like George and Tammy, another song like Bill Monroe
Another song you'll never hear on country radio
I got pages full of memories, I can see them all so clear
I write another song, another song nobody will hear
I write another song, another song nobody will hear
