at least she looks sincere every now and then

this place is second rate a one way street leading for the end but don't let her see you cry old man the best hours haunt your head again your shadow's taking all the space that we walk in she's giving chase just like a child during recess I'm sick to death why can't it end and be over let's wait a year and figure out we're not sober chorus:

I'm not afraid of losing wars just take this white flag I trust the way, I'm losing yours but you're just a fire I learned to touch so intriguing in a perverse way for the incurably dishonest owe the world an apology oh girl I bet my sight you wouldn't scream inside a condescending life for a lifetime I tried to save someone it's not my fault you're the lie in believe me when I leave you out on your own
