These moving letters make me so sad
This awkward feeling makes me want to give up everything
The more I think of you the more I think I know that I'd learn to love you if you'd let me

This can't be happening

All this pain seems to rip right through me
Paranoia leaves me cold
Please come home now - I know it's all my fault

I know it's all my fault

The distance that we cross it seems so small
The constant ringing of the phone just makes me want to tear it off the hook
This silence that we share makes everything so awful
I think you're beautiful but you won't let me have a second look

Why do you do this?

All this pain seems to rip right through me
Paranoia leaves me cold
Please come home now - I know it's all my fault
This dusty beach road stretches out before me
My foot sinks down right to the floor
Now I know that I'll never come back home

Now I know that I'll never come back home
