I used to wish away your memory every night
Trying to erase the lines you've drawn
But suddenly you've faded almost out of sight
Now you're going, going gone

Why did I try so hard to let you go when deep down I
don't know
If I am really ready to say goodbye
Now what am I going to hold onto?
I miss missing you

I always found some comfort in my loneliness
If nothing else it filled the space
Now that I'm over you I'm left with emptiness
And nothing to take its place

Why did I try so hard to let you go when deep down I
don't know
If I am really ready to say goodbye
Now what am I going to hold onto?
I miss missing

Your smile on every stranger's face that I saw
Now I have to concentrate to remember you at all

Why did I try so hard to let you go when deep down I
don't know
If I am really ready to say goodbye
Now what am I going to hold onto?
I miss missing you
