If I could climb through the telephone line
I'd be there in a dial tone, you wouldn't be alone
If I could turn into a letter in word that I write down from my heart catch a ride on a post card

My watch is always set to your time
My shoes are always ready and tied
My heart points north, longing
For without you I'm an ice cube melting

The distance between us baby could roll up and trade in, maybe for a moment instead of winter air to see your breath

'cause my watch is always set to your time
My shoes are always ready and tied
My heart points north, longing
For without you I'm an ice cube melting

I know the north star knows just where you are
And then just beyond him you sleep, I imagine I'll try to hook on the sunrise
And you're still dreaming, I'll wake you in the morning

The distance between us baby
could roll up and trade in, maybe
for a moment instead
of winter air to see your breath

My watch is always set to your time
My shoes are always ready and tied
My heart points north, longing
For without you I'm an ice cube melting
