Stolen Aphrodite, beautiful and mighty
Act like you can find me tucked beneath a vine leaf
Try to keep my head down, try to keep my mouth shut

You do not exist; you are a product of my loneliness

Never let you in, I'll never let you find me
Butcher what you do have, put your past behind me

I am not afraid and will not buckle under ignorance
And you could find a purpose while I fumbled for deliverance
I'm happy but I wouldn't put it past our new intelligence

So we swam to the bottom of the sea
Found faith and a little bit of sanity
Oh some peace and quiet may be what I need
It'll be a lot better if you're honest with me

(The way I think that I should get away sometimes the Way I wish that you would try and compromise)

Cause I'm sick of saying where I don't belong
If you just don't talk than you can't be wrong
So you sit there smug with the stereo on Typing, yes, yes, never to your favorite song

(The way I think that I should get away sometimes the Way I wish that you would try and compromise)

Oh you can't find love where you thought you would Every single lead you had is turning up no good
I can change my mind if you think you could
I would move my belongings if you thought I should

And every single time I think I'll keep my cool
I catch my other body making eyes at you
And instincts are deceiving, do you trust me to Run away, run away, run away

Because you were never anything I thought I'd want

I've been trying for a while and this thing I got Left me rambling and stumbling over what I say
And I say, and I say, and I say
Run away, run away, run away

Stolen Aphrodite, beautiful and mighty
Act like you can find me tucked beneath a vine leaf

This was never anything I wanted you to suffer for Despite how much I love my home
I find I'm missing Baltimore
Tied and gagged and bound to soil
I will taste forever more
