I said goodbye to the river
The mountains and the trees
Can't you hear they are singing their song
Of birth and agony

Many words, many dreams I've got to give

I said goodbye to the seasons
That were never insincere
By myself I am singing their song
That no one wants to hear
I am singing their song

Many words, many dreams I've got to give
But in this racing world there is no place for me
And when I leave today no memories remain

Many words, many dreams I've got to give
But in this racing world there is no place for me
And when I leave today no memories remain

Many words, many dreams I've got to give
But in this racing world there is no place for me
And when I leave today no memories remain

Many words, many dreams I've got to give
