Just another woman in my life

Just another woman

Lost in the night

Just another woman

Keepin' in touch with a man

Knock upon my window

Late at night making me believe that something's not right

I look through the window but all I can see

Is the rain

Standing on my doorstep

Not very old looking so helpless

And looking so cold

A woman in need of some help

Most have lost her way

She was tall

She was lost

She could smile

And her words got crossed

Just another woman

In my life
Just another woman
Lost in the night
Just another woman
Keepin' in touch with a man
As we sat by the fire
The flame just grew
Talking about just the things we knew
Watching a new day arise outside my room
The more I listened the more she told
And in fascination my heart was sold
Weaving in and out of my mind
With a skidder off now
She was tall
She was lost
She could smile
And her words got crossed
Just another woman
In my life
Just another woman
Lost in the night
Just another woman
Keepin' in touch with a man
