Graham Russell)

Watching the sun set so low

Tells us that it's time the day is to end

Nobody cries as it leaves

Or reaches for the light

But soon back again

But then I hear you sigh

And wish that you could stay

I'd like another day with you

Don't want to know

Where it ends

I'll live with either way

Just tell me what I have to do

Where is the joy time forgets

You ask me if I know

It's still as before

Up on a breeze, soaring high

It comes alive each day

Whenever you call

But now to lose your love

The charm throughout my day

To walk along our paths all alone

I have memories enough

To help me find my way

To bring back all the love we've known
