What kind of man is enough to begin to understand

How love begins so small

>From that first day when she wakes and your arms are all she has

To hold on to

You'll never let her go and you say

"What kind of girl."

You'll never run anymore now that the world has come alive

For you, you'll say (how did I once survive)

What kind of girl does it take that gives everything she has

Always you know you'll never let her go

And you'll say what kind of girl

CHORUS

What kind of girl

What kind of girl

What kind of girl

What kind of girl

>From that first day when she wakes and your arms
are all she has

To hold on to

You'll never let her go and you say

What kind of girl
