And in a moment and in one instant
I throw the whole of it away
And in a moment and in one instant
I throw the whole of it away
And you could not imagine all the damage
I would do if there were more time.
Because the rubble left behind me
Is only guilty of being in my flight line

And in the morning and when I'm waking
I try to start a brand new day
And in the morning and when I'm waking
I try to start a brand new day
And even I could not imagine
All the innocent that I would take down
Because the rubble left behind me
Is only guilty of being in my flight line

And after moving and in my leaving
I feel the pain of my mistake
And after moving and in my leaving
I feel the pain of my mistake
And we were beautiful together
Until selfishly I tore it all down
Because the rubble left behind me
Is only guilty of being in my flight line
