

Woven Hand

"Ashes & Apologies"

Visit "Ashes & Apologies" on MotoLyrics.com

Your words are so deafening
But actions speak louder than anything words could ever say
Your voice is so threatening;
Now a whisper in the distance

Now I'm forgetting your face, with every passing day I find a little more of me

You swear it's over now (staring at the ground)
I wish that you could say you're sorry
We've probably lost by now (this bridge is burning down)
And you swear it's over now

A view condescending, you wear your true colors
And justify the hurtful things you say
I can't even defend myself anymore
The tide has washed me away

Now I'm erasing your face, with every passing day I find more harmony

You swear it's over now (staring at the ground)
I wish that you could say you're sorry
We've probably lost by now (this bridge is burning
down)
And you swear it's over now

Visit Woven Hand page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.