"My, Oh My"

This concrete road used to just be dirt
We'd drive out here after work
Every Friday night when I was eighteen

This parking lot used to be a field
I parked here in my Oldsmobile
Long before the Sonic and the Walgreens

Not no more, not no more
My, oh my, look how the time flies
Look how the world changes in the blink of an eye

My, oh my, look how the years have flown
Turning around before you know it up and gone
Oh my, oh my, oh my

Times have changed and so have I
I once was young and starry-eyed
Now I have these bittersweet memories

Songs were long and gas was cheap
No cell phones and water was free
Daddy paid and I never had to worry

Not no more, not no more
My, oh my, look how the time flies
Look how the world changes in the blink of an eye

My, oh my, look how the years have flown
Turning around before you know it up and gone
Oh my, oh my, oh my

Oh my, oh my, my, my

Not no more, not no more, not no more
My, oh my, look how the time flies
Look how the world changes in the blink of an eye

My, oh my, look how the years have flown
Turning around before you know it up and gone
Oh my, oh my, oh my

Oh my, oh my, oh my
Oh my, oh my, oh my
