How can you believe the things that you say?
You lie and you always contradict yourself
But that'll come unstuck one day
And why do you persist with the things you do?
You spend most of your day bringing everyone down
But it'll all come back on you.

Either you don't know what you're doing
Or you really couldn't care.
But your bitter words won't get you anywhere.

What are you trying to prove, what are you trying to say?
Is there anything that you haven't destroyed?
Is there anything left in your way?
What are you trying to prove, and does it really matter anyway?
You pull everyone down just to build yourself up
But you're the loser at the end of the day

Years go by and you still haven't changed.
Will you ever make anything of your life?
Of will you always be this way?
And when will you admit that you are wrong?
You think you can hide behind your stubbornness
But you know that can't last long

Either you don't know what you're doing
Or you really couldn't care.
But your bitter words won't get you anywhere.

What are you trying to prove, what are you trying to
say?
Is there anything that you haven't destroyed?
Is there anything left in your way?
What are you trying to prove, and does it really matter anyway?
You pull everyone down just to build yourself up
But you're the loser at the end of the day [x3]
