Love comes and goes
Sometimes decades sometimes months
Raise you up to the sky
Make you feel like every little thing is bright inside you Crashing back down
Make you so sick that you want to drown
No other pain, like losing a soul mate

The roads we take in life often seem to be very strong We walk them carelessly like we're walking on bricks and stone
Only when we look 'round we will see the road is packed
Oh, there we must move forward, gently as we tread

Chorus

To carry our guilt sometimes seems the only thing that's easy
Even when your flesh and bones and all it is you need While good and evil will say that the truth will set you free
But I guess we have to wait sometimes, wait around and see

Chorus

Now see the sun rising again
Brand new colors, brand new man again
Picking up the pieces of the brokenness Sweeping up the pieces, the pieces that we had

Chorus
