A witch has come from under the ocean
And with a pointed and sharp finger
Snatched my baby by the crook of her jaw
And hooked her breath away
And bloated and cut her soft,
Dearest skin and face
Her hair has gone from black to green
She used to complain when I used
Too much water to wash her hair
I can't imagine what it was like for her
To have died swallowing the sea
I want to pause and offer
Your lonely grave farewell but it is covered in mud
It is nowhere there is no way
To light an altar for you
Everything is too wet
Tight around my neck
Tie me with this rotten wire
That snaps it's quiet snap
I've poured my life into this world and here I am
