Sun is perching on my office block the air conditioning's run away no one dares to swim the street below while the world's a ball of baking clay Never knew a summer hot as this before never knew burn me through
never knew a summer hot as this before but then I never knew you Bed is drowning me in sheets of fire what are you doing in my dreams?
I'm usually immune to August heat but you're reducing me to tiny streams
Never knew a summer hot as this before
never knew burn me through
never knew a summer hot as this before
You melt me down enough to fill a coffee cup and what I've found is that I spend all day dreaming that you'll drink me up
Never knew a summer hot as this before
never knew a summer hot as this before
