and I said I would break us when we went to chow and I knew I would break us and I even knew how but it's muddy and it's dark without you darling it's craters all across a stormy sea and I am nearly perfect in my sorrow but perfect for you I will never be this candle has stopped burning the circus freed the fleas I'm still crawling to you darling behind you on my knees and I can't figure how to live without you but not knowing seems like such dramatic flair it's acrobatic all the webs we're weaving but underneath it I will always care

and I am nearly perfect in my sorrow it's hard as diamond, set into a ring but unlike a diamond resting on a finger perfect for you I will never be because of all the lies I went and told you perfect for you I will never be
