Wide-eyed little boy at the foot of a cherry blossom tree
Lookin' up and wondering how high he can climb
Heart racing over endless possibilities
Imagining what is waiting there to find
Everything is anywhere
When your heart and mind lead you there
Don't simply climb through the trees
Climb to the sky
There is no end to this road we ride
Let your dreams flow on like the rolling tide
There are no walls to this lullaby
Curious little girl among a field of wild flowers
Wanting to be the beauty, the beauty that she sees
She twirls around and 'round for hours upon hours
Whistling her song along with the whispering breeze
In every wish and every star
There is a piece of who you are
Don't simply climb through the trees
Climb to the sky
There is no end to this road we ride
Let your dreams flow on like the rolling tide
There are no walls to this lullaby
(I'm Tryin to tel 'ya)
Everything is anywhere
When your heart and mind lead you there
In every wish and every star
There is a piece of who you are
Don't simply climb through the trees, Climb to the sky
There is no end to this road we ride
Let your dreams flow like the rolling tide
There are no walls to this lullaby
Don't simply climb
When you could fly,
There is no end
No no no,
There are no walls,
to this lullaby.
