(cough) (cough) (cough)
Reginald was home with the flu ah-aa
The doctor new just what to do-hoo
He cured the infection,
With one small injection
while Reginald shouted out interjection.

Hey that smarts!
Ouch thats not fair!
giving a guy a shot down there!

Interjections (hey) show excitement (ouch) or emotion,
they're generally apart from a sentence by an exclamation point,
or by a comma when the feelings not as strong.

Though Geraldine played hard to get uh-uhuh Geraldo knew he'd whoo her ye-het
he showed his affection
despite her objection
and Geraldine hollered interjections.

Well youv'e got some nerve!
Oh, I've never been so insulted in my life!
Hey you're kind of cute!

Interjections (Well) show excitement (Oh) or emotion,
they're generally apart from a sentence
by an exclamation point,
or by a comma when the feelings not as strong.

So when you're happy "Hurray" or sad "Aw"
or frightened "eek" or mad "rats"
or excited "Wow" or glad "Hey"
an interjection starts a sentence right.

The game was tight a 7:00 uh-uh
when Franklin found he had the ba-hall
he made a connection in the other direction
and the crowd shouted out interjection.

You threw it the wrong way
Darn, we just lost the game
Hurray, i'm for the other team

Interjections (darn) show excitement (hurray) or emotion, they're generally apart from a sentence by an exclamation point,
or by a comma when the feelings not as strong.

So when you're happy "Hurray" or sad "Aw"
or frightened "eek" or mad "rats"
or excited "Wow" or glad "Hey"
an interjection starts a sentence right.

Interjections, show excitement, or emotion
Hallelujah, hallelujah, hallelujah.

Darn that's the end
