Lit by moonlight
Stand and smoke your cigarette
As it gets cold out
Inhale peace, exhale regret

And you're too cute to stand there alone
Why don't we go where I can misuse you

Come in and dance, love
And sway your hips from side to side
Adjust your feelings
Now doesn't that feel nice

And you're too cool to stay to the side
Why don't we go for a ride
And you're too kind to keep me away
How about one more lie

Well love ain't pain, it shouldn't be a game
Shouldn't feel like a wasted day, shouldn't be so bitter
Don't say we're good enough to change
It's hard enough today, and I'll never be the man you would want
Look now, at what it is and how Hell, I could have been around, but it wouldn't really be any better
Somehow it's getting clearer now
I'll forever be the man
I'll forever be the man you don't want

We don't need this
But I bet you think you do
It feels like morning
And heaven knows you're mourning too

Well you're too real to lie to yourself
Why don't you try something else
And you're too wise to call me a friend
But let's do it all over again

(Chorus)

Turn around, look at me
Do you see what I mean
Never do dirty hands stay clean
And I know what I've seen

Well you're too scared to ask for a try
And I'm too cruel to comply

(Chorus)

(Chorus2)
