

Searing Solace

"Heights"

I have no wings, I cannot soar in refined air
And if I might, will I ever try to dare?
When the light is out, when the darkness shouts,
The presence of me is born
As I hold my eyes, at the brightest night
I tell myself these thoughts

Here's my everlong,
Where's the hope when time is gone
Face my enemy, I will close my eyes to clear my thoughts

In the white and black days
I can feel a cold blaze
In the warmth of my face
I try to be strong
As time grows along tonight
In the colorful nights, there's a tale of a life where a warrior fights 'till he falls and he dies
And I cry
I will never reach these heights

My fear of heights has put a mark within my sight
And it goes on without reasons to keep on trying It's the safest way to remain the same
Obey the rules of the game
But as I try to stay
In a common way
I live my life in vain

Here's my everlong,
Where's the hope when time is gone
Face my enemy, I will close my eyes to clear my
thoughts

In the white and black days
I can feel a cold blaze
In the warmth of my face

I try to be strong
As time grows along tonight
In the colorful nights, there's a tale of a life
where a warrior fights 'till he falls and he dies
And I cry
I will never reach these heights

It's surreal
But I can't believe this sight
It's a fragile goal
For a troubled soul in a cold and strangled world

In the white and black days
And I cry
I will never reach these heights

Never reach these heights
