everybody's askin' me lately where i'm from they wanna know what i've been through and what dirt i've done but man if i told you what i've seen and been through then you'd probably run off you'd be scared of the truth so instead in secret lined in chalk you see i've been lost ever since i could walk lookin' for my daddy and any one of momma's boyfriends who would talk or listen to me when i spoke instead of lookin' at me like a joke or leavin' me behind, leavin' me to cry when he treated my momma like a ho
but i learnt quick that my daddy wasn't never gonna come around and i didn't give a shit
'cause me and my momma we held it down no new kicks first day of school i'm goodwill bound but when you come from the trench that's how you learn to walk around so i don't give a fuck if you ever lay eyes on top of my new shoes homie
i just wanted you to know that i didn't need a dollar from you i got 'em myself so if you find yourself in the middle of the floor with a bottle drinkin' yourself lonely then you can keep up with me with the picture of me in the magazine on the shelf turn the page

daddy can you see me?
i'm puttin' on a show
in the magazines
hear me on the radio
so what do you think (well i)
i hope that you're proud now
to watch it all go down
i'm sorry daddy

you didn't get to watch me grow
now i'm always on the road
no time to say hello (bye)
and i hope that you're proud now

yeah momma you look great so perfect
be safe on your first date that's for certain
if he brings you home too late i'll hurt him
don't worry about me, i'm safe i'll close the curtains and i feel like i'm raising you but what do i know, baby blue
so i put all my faith in you yeah i was only ten but i felt like a man, and i had to let you go
all i wanted was for us to be rich, teardrops in my cereal bowl
so i turned into a asshole young and dumb
smokin' weed
vandalizin'
robbin' houses
stealin' cars
that was me
but everything i did i had to see feel the pain
had to grieve
to become
who i am
and i'm proud of the man i came to be 'cause what i've learned could not be taught what i've earned could not be bought justified deserve it all so don't be concerned, it's not your fault i never counted sheep
i count my blessings
so if you see him now momma, don't give him the cold shoulder, give him my message just tell him
