On and on the story goes
And it gets difficult
To get a clear view
In the rear-view of what I've done
I stayed on top of everything
But I lost sight of you

And I don't want to make you sad
I don't mean to make you sad

How can I repay for things
That you have never lent
To unbend things
That I have never bent
To make it right and out of sight
To wash away the scent

Well I don't want to make you sad
I don't mean to make you sad

Strangely
I turn tough on you, my brother
On you my brother
Strangely
I turn tough on you, my brother
On you my brother

Something came
Divided you from me and me from you
Something came and just
Forced it's way through
Nothing's better
Nothing's worse than just a bit of pain

But I don't want to make you sad
I don't mean to make you sad

Strangely
I turn tough on you, my brother
On you my brother
Strangely

I turn tough on you, my brother
On you my brother
