If I could be someone
Within an hour or a day
If I could turn the wheel of fortune
Could you guess what I would say

If I could be a believer
If I could be whatever
You'd want me to be
A believer, a believer, a believer

Someone, someone
To make your every day
Yeah, someone just trying
To wipe them tears away

Yeah, someone burning fires
On the edge of every town
Yeah, someone just rolling
In your love as it comes down

And if I could see things different
If I could turn the clock of time
If I could re-arrange the play love
I would never leave you behind

If I could be a believer
If I could be

Whoever you'd want me to be
A believer, a believer, a believer,

Someone, someone
To make your every day
Yeah, someone just trying
To wipe them tears away

Yeah, someone burning fires
On the edge of every town
Yeah, someone just rolling
In your love as it comes down

Someone, someone

To make your every day
Yeah, someone bitter morning
Come and play your solid blues

A believer
A believer, believer, believer, believer
Then I might stop
Then I might stop playing pretend

And if I could show you
My heaven Iâ'd wear my thorny crown
I walk the stairs of seven
I walk them down
