"December Never Ends"

The memories remain intact and the pain strikes me forever inside Every time I close my eyes I imagine a time when things were fine
I try to forget but it makes me cry and there is no way I can hide
The walls are crumbling down and I can't walk past this hollow line

As I lay down to rest this is what I confess Dreaming for it to stop but December never ends
Looking for a way out and a new address
Losing my faith in myself but December never ends

The dreams of us as one is gone but the visions won't go away
Every day I try to hide but I dream of those times we spent together
I try to forget but it tells a lie and there is nothing else I can say
The walls are caving in and I can't get through this winter weather

As I lay down to rest this is what I confess
Dreaming for it to stop but December never ends
Looking for a way out and a new address
Losing my faith in myself but December never ends

The memories remain unimpaired and the pain strikes me forever inside Every day I lay to sleep and I dream of a time when things were fine
I try to forget but it makes me whine and there is no way I can hide
The walls are breaking in and I can't walk between these hollow lines

As I lay down to rest this is what I confess
Dreaming for it to stop but December never ends
Looking for a way out and a new address
Losing my faith in myself but December never ends

As I lay down to rest this is what I confess
Dreaming for it to stop but December never ends
Looking for a way out and a new address
Losing my faith in myself but December never ends
