A lot less warmer and a little bit cold
Your heart is a shade of gray I've never seen before
Your eyes lie to me and your words get tangled
A love letter written but with it a lie unfolds
I drain my anger but you can't live with a little struggle
You're too weak, carry on

Shaded, broken down and faded
She's a girl who is lost in her own love
Jaded, twisted words and hatred
I'm a man who is battling demons of my own

I am a man who is afraid of what the future lies
She's a girl who is scared to face the truth
I wait around hoping it will all end soon
While she just sits there with her useless alibi

A lot less passion and a little bit hate
You're an animal that I've never faced before
Your words whisper to me but nothing ever unfolds
You bitch your words and I just try to ignore you
You're a liar, drift away

Beaten, bottled up and spooked
She's a girl who's in love with the past
Faded, crooked grins and rages
I'm a man who is facing this new way of life

I am a man who is afraid of what the future lies
She's a girl who is scared to face the truth
I wait around hoping it will all end soon
While she just sits there with her useless alibi

This is an answer that cannot be questioned
An excuse without a conclusion
This is a book that cannot be finished
A truth with only a lie
Face the fears off all to be faced for
What goes around comes around

I am a man who is afraid of what the future lies

She's a girl who is scared to face the truth
I wait around hoping it will all end soon
While she just sits there with her useless alibi
