Art is a war that I lost on my way to Vietnam
They say losing is an art, yeah but winning is the job
But I feel so far from where I should be
But you're here right now, and just think of where you could be
I'd ask myself every single change I get
But we can't go back, so let's drink to missteps
And all the time that we watch rust, yo
Raise a glass to the past, here's to us

Tell me, how did we get so far from
What we thought, what we thought we were
So pour me some cheap champagne 'cause
Things can't be, just can't be the same

Pride is a weapon that I carried close next to my will You were losing the fight, but are you losing it still?
If you burn the white flag, then the red gets raised
When you get what you want, then you get into the craze
I put myself down every chance I get Counting sheep through the night, but I can't sleep yet
All the dreams that we let rust, yo
Raise a glass to the past, here's to us

Tell me, how did we get so far from
What we thought, what we thought we were
So pour me some cheap champagne 'cause
Things can't be, just can't be the same

It used to be good, it used to feel right
The feeling is gone, I'm too tired to fight
It used to be good, it used to feel right
The feeling is gone, I'm too tired to fight

Tell me, how did we get so far from
What we thought, what we thought we were
So pour me some cheap champagne 'cause
Things can't be, just can't be

Tell me, how did we get so far from

What we thought, what we thought we were
So pour me some cheap champagne 'cause
Things can't be, just can't be the same

There's a lesson that I fought on my way to the corp
If it can't be mine, well then it can't be yours
But I feel so far from where I could be
But you're here right now, and just think of where you should be
I tell myself every damn chance I get
That we can't go back, so let's drink to missteps
And all the dreams that we let rust, yo
Raise a glass to the past, here's to us
