We're pregnant,
with a book and it's tides.
We're static yet tall.
Who offered
what we took either way,
who offered at all.

One look hard, they gave in.
How many times did it change directions?
Breezy ghosts, you'll keep on. I told you

Your points are underrated,
towering tall letterings.
It's harder to do on your own,
but the words that are there,
you will find them all.

We're constant
when the tragic betrays us.
We'll tax them and all.
Who told you
what you see you can feel?
They've conquered us all.

One look hard, they gave in.
How many times did it change directions?
Breezy ghosts, you'll keep on. I told you

Your points are underrated,
towering tall letterings.
It's harder to do on your own,
but the words that are there,
you will find them all.
Your face it paints me colors
changing my life
and it's tied around my neck.
We could turn dust into gold and forever
and ever change,
Forever, changing forever.

All that you made of me,

will die with me.
All that you hate in me,
will die with me.
Look to the stars, remain in my heart.
Grave I'm yours,
no more sympathy.

Your points are underrated,
towering tall letterings.
It's harder to do on your own,
but the words that are there,
you will find them all.
Your face it paints me colors
changing my life
and it's tied around my neck.
We could turn dust into gold and forever
and ever change,
Forever, changing forever.
