She screams inside and dreams of love (and suicide)
Then I saw her face, I saw her face look at me and I saw nothing
I saw no eyes, no flesh, just untangled swirls of nothingness, nothingness!
If you see my wings in the snow
Buried underground, frozen to the touch, still alive
Than pull me out and see that I am dead
But my heart is still warm
Frozen bone through frozen bone
Has death become of me?
I cannot fly with broken wings
Upon the hill that calls my name
It sings sweet misery to me
Feeling so sad is all I've known, it's all I've had Dying, yeah, I'm afraid to be alone
I'm all alone
Has death become of me?
I cannot fly with broken wings
Upon the hill that calls my name
It sings sweet misery
If you see my wings in the snow, buried underground, frozen to the touch
It comforts me
My heart is warm you see
But do you even care?
Will you take it out for me and keep it safe?
It's all I have
It's all I ever had
