First glance I had on you I couldn't move
I forgot everything I'd planned to do First glance I was caught staring, but I lost caring You silenced me and locked me with your eyes

I tried to protest but reason gave me the test and I did what I thought best and released

But we lapse again
We crash again
I can't beg the birds to sing
I can't wear your comfort ring
Oh my sight is lost in your eyes

Last night you and me felt like we were meant to be when I was inside But then we spoke I knew what I was about to do would end with you pushing me aside You tried to protest but reason put you to rest and you did what you do best and released
You turned to me, face to cheek, I couldn't see but felt on me I made you cry

But we lapse again
We crash again
I can't beg the birds to sing
I can't wear your comfort ring
Oh my sight is lost in your eyes

This time I thought the seas would change for me but the current tugged I gave up and shrugged Again I'll lose
Don't make me choose I'll be fine
