I know when you leave you're supposed to say goodbye I know you're supposed to give a kiss and hug and say goodbye No-one will remember you for things you said no matter just how cruel they may have seemed at the time

Daylight has so much going for it but not blooming anymore
and that's okay
I'm leaving anyway
I know you're leaving on a good note
but why not wait until the melody is ours

What could be more boring
than a broken heart a broken heart swept under the rug for no-one to find
What could be more boring
than a boy in love
a boy in love
all dressed up and murderously styled

Daylight has so much going for it
I'm not blooming anymore
and that's okay
I'm leaving anyway
I know you're leaving on a good note
but why not wait until the melody is ours

You know when you make a rash decision you always hurt the ones you cannot love You turn it off and on like television Don't touch the lights just leave it dark
They can tell you that the heart won't lie There'll be times you know you wish it had Like the time we sat up all night talking something happened and the sun just never came back
