Could you ever understand how you ended up here
Any friend you've ever had has disappeared
And the tug of a heartstring is the line that pulls you home
You bear witness to the ones you used to know

And I keep having these dreams
And I keep having these dreams
And I keep having these dreams

I will come to you, when you fall down,
And when the lights go out
And we will set the world to rights
When I find you under Capricornia skies

Don't you wanna be someone, you've gotta let it go
If we stay here we'll be old before we'll know
And the shadow of the midday sun burns beneath your feet
And the old dogs are still sleeping in the street

And I keep having these dreams
And I keep having these dreams
And I keep having these dreams

I will come to you when you fall down
And when the lights go out
And you will set the world to rights
When I find you under Capricornia skies

You ask more questions than you answer
It pulls me out and I go with the tide
And you turn my world on its axis
Every time I look into your eyes

You say the things you love are the things you never had
And when you hold them they pass through your hands like sand
Well, I have made promises too that I could never hold

Underneath the sun the parts of these histories fold

And I keep having these dreams

And I keep having these dreams

And I keep having these dreams

I will come to you when you fall down

And when the lights go out

And you will set the world to rights

When I find you under Capricornia skies
