

Sophomore Attempt, The "Elisabeth"

So I saw you sneaking through the back door
Heartfelt and I knew you needed something
To hold you over till your ship came in Bull's eye now I think it's something deeper
He paid only just to keep her
Shut up with a handshake and a grin

So cool and confident
For what it's worth what makes sense
Are you finally where you need to be
And finally all that's left is broken hearts and shattered
glass
Will you find the place you need to be

So is it even worth the trouble
To break the rope and face the struggle
Of just another day alone
So I saw you sneaking through the back door
You cried out, but everyone ignored you
Inside your prison cell alone

So cool and confident
For what it's worth what makes sense
Are you finally where you need to be?
And finally all that's left is broken hearts and shattered
glass
Will you find the place you need to be?

Close your eyes
Pretend this isn't happening
Close your eyes
Pretend this isn't happening.
Close your eyes
Pretend this isn't happening.
Close your eyes
Pretend this isn't happening
Close your eyes
Pretend this isn't happening

So cool and confident
For what it's worth and what makes sense

Are you finally where you need to be?
And finally all that's left is broken hearts and shattered
glass
Will you find the place you need to be?
And all I want you to know is that you'll be fine in this
And all I want you to know

You said let's talk about it
You said it sure would mean a lot
But talking requires that you listen
You said let's talk about it
You said it sure would mean a lot
But talking requires that you listen
You never listen.
