Who would be a poor man
a beggerman, a thief
if he had a rich man in his hand.
Who would steal the candy
from a laughing baby's mouth
if he could take it from the money man.
Cross-eyed Mary
goes jumping in again.
She signs no contract
but she always plays the game.
Dines in Hampstead village on expense accounted gruel, and the jack knife barber drops her off at school.
Laughing in the playground gets no kicks from little boys:
would rather make it with a leaching gray.
Or maybe her attention
is drawn by Aqualung,
who watches through the railings as they play.
Cross-eyed Mary

finds it hard to get along.

She's a poor man's rich girl and she'll do it for a song.

She's a rich man's stealer

but her favour's good and strong:

She's the Robin Hood of Highgate helps the poor man get along
