He sits by the phone; he hopes it'll ring
But it's a sound he won't hear tonight.
He's got to do this alone; it's just one of those things
To make everything alright.

She wants to make sure, that nobody calls
That nobody talks on the telephone.
The only sound that she wants him to hear
Comes straight from her.

It's okay to be alone.
She says that it's okay; you're never alone.

You know she's down when Mr. Wonder isn't wonderful
The coldtrain's got the color scheme all right.

You know she's up when the Backstreet Boys don't suck.
And though she'll never say it to your face
She likes New Kids on the Block.

She wants to make sure, that nobody calls
That nobody talks on the telephone.
She wants him to see, said she wants him to hear, she wants him to know

That it's okay to be alone.
She sang, that it's okay; you're never alone.

And I've gathered all the pieces I can see
To this puzzle of moodswings and melodies.
Yes, we've looked so hard for happiness
I swear we'll find it in this mess someday.
Maybe oh, someday, oh someday.

And I've gathered all the pieces I can see
To this puzzle of moodswings and melodies.
Yes, we've looked so hard for happiness
I swear we'll find it in this mess someday.
Maybe oh, someday, oh someday
Someday.

Someday.
Someday.
