

Spill Canvas, The "Lullaby"

It's the way that you blush when you're nervous.
It's your ability to make me earn this.
I know that you're tired,
Just let me sing you to sleep.

It's about how you laugh out of pity,
'Cause let's be honest, I'm not really that funny.
I know that you're shot,
Just let me sing you to sleep.

If you need anything,
Just say the word, I mean anything.
Rest assured, if you start to doze,
Than I'll tuck you in,
And plant my lips where your necklaces close.

It's those pills that you don't need to take;
Medicating perfection, now that's a mistake.
I know that you're spent,
Just let me sing you to sleep.

It's your finger and how I'm wrapped around it.
It's your grace and how it keeps me grounded.
I know that you're weak,
Just let me sing you to sleep.

If you need anything,
Just say the word, I mean anything.
Rest assured, if you start to doze,
Than I'll tuck you in,
And plant my lips where your necklaces close.

While you were sleeping,
I figured out everything:
I was constructed for you,
And you were molded for me.

Now I feel your name,
Coursing through my veins.
You shine so bright, it's insane.
You put the sun to shame.

If you need anything,
Just say the word, I mean anything. (I really do.)
Rest assured, if you start to doze,
Than I'll tuck you in,
And plant my lips where your necklaces...

If you need anything, I mean anything.
Rest assured, if you start to doze,
Than I'll tuck you in,
And plant my lips where your necklaces close.
