There are things in this world that I don't understand.
Like love, war, gravity, or the lay of the land.
All of these remain mysteries,
But one thing is for sure;
You are worth living for.

Sometimes when I'm far away from you,
I get a little lost, a little out of my element.
I miss the way your body burns when we melt alone.

There are things in this world that I don't understand.
Like love, war, gravity, or the lay of the land.
All of these remain mysteries,
But one thing is for sure;
You are worth living for.

Sometimes when I let my mind run free,
It never fails that it goes right to you
And a smile take a hold of me.
I miss the way your body burns when we melt alone.

There are things in this world that I don't understand.
Like love, war, gravity, or the lay of the land.
All of these remain mysteries,
But one thing is for sure;
You are worth living for.

There are things in this world that I don't understand.
Like love, war, gravity, or the lay of the land.
All of these remain mysteries,
But one thing is for sure;
You are worth living for.
