What's it like when you're grown
What's it like when you're gone
What's it like when you're going where you'll never belong
Fooling all your dreams and hopes
And friends and folks
And the whole lot of them
But if I, like it this way
If I like it so
Then why not show me
Before I outgrow the story
Before I let go

Take a look at what you've got Doesn't it feel a bit like a wonder
I've been picking the wrong chords
Till it got you under
Being for real without me hurting
Would mean "one for the soul"

We're getting along and way to go
I had a lot to show
But it tends to blow
Things that I'm holding
I am here to abide into your lonely eyes
I am here cause I'm lurking for a soul surprise
Letting go

What's it like when you're grown
What's it like when you're gone
What's it like when you're going
And you're already wrong
Trading off old dreams
For a scope of new ideas
Have a go at it all
But if I like it this way
If I like my goings
Things that I hold are showing
Will they keep their glow

We're getting along and way to go

I had a lot to show
But it tends to blow
These things that I'm holding
I am here to abide into your lonely eyes
I am here cause I'm lurking for a soul surprise
Letting go,
I am at a loss and you know
Forgetting is the hardest
Sometimes I am really out of line
When we're stepping into rhyme

What's it like when you're grown
What's it like when you're gone
What's it like when you're going
And you're already wrong
