You used to think about what you need to make your life complete
You wish things were so way back when they were out of reach
And if you had one wish back then You used to know someone that had the thing that you lived for
It almost feels like you deserve this more than they do

Cause if you had one wish back then You'd wish for now that wish again

Why do you always wanna make things better?
Why are people never satisfied?
Whatever you get, you gotta get another
Because we think we're so deprived

Five years later your life is what back then you thought would be perfect
You have your true love or success, whatever you dreamed of

But you still want that something more
You think your life is such a bore

Why do you always wanna make things better?
Why are people never satisfied?
Whatever you get, you gotta get another
Because we think we're so deprived

Just try to live your dreams
Don't take things you got for granted
There may be something else someone has But don't forget what you have

Five years later your life is what back then you thought
would be perfect
But we're still never satisfied

Why do you always wanna make things better?
Why are people never satisfied?

Whatever you get, you gotta get another
Because we think we're so deprived

Why do you always wanna make things better?
Why are people never satisfied?
Whatever you get, you gotta get another
Because we think we're so deprived

Five years later your life is what back then you thought
would be perfect
But we're still never satisfied
