I have never been afraid to see no right from wrong.
Fixate occcessive happy heart,
filled with lead and song; and they say.
Rustic eyelids blink "come hither".
Hands hold metal shine.
Glitt'ry girls in dispatch gear,
smiling all the while and they say: "Mordre!"

Kill me later. Worry later.
They all disappear from view.
Kill me later. Kissing traitors.
I only have eyes for you dear,
I only have eyes for-

Spinning shapes,
repeated face a rhapsody in blood.
As i must, I do not trust Mister Moon above.
And they say: "Nertz!"

Kill me later. Worry later.
They all disappear from view.
Kill me later. Kissing traitors.
I only have eyes for you dear,
I only have eyes-

I don't know if i'm in a garden,
or on a crowded avenue.
You are here, so am I.
Darling millions of people go bye-bye.

I've never been right and I've never been wrong.
Impressing improper love through a song.
That's never to say it's never been said.
It's never to say I've never been dead.
Bad little people they pet in the park.
Abstracted motives exchanged in the dark.
Asleep on the subway, the end of the line.
No stragglers left to sway to your cries.
Bebe and bullets and pennies from Hell.
Lovely in feathers, the ringing of bells.
Torch songs that burn, kisses that cut.

Wings for a hussy, a halo in blood.
Mordre wol out certein it woll nat faille.
Fall by the fountain and fall by the trail.
Shadowy waltzes, stinking of gin.
Murder will out, when I get in.

Never been right and I've never been wrong.
Impressing improper love through a song.
That's never to say it's never been said.
It's never to say I've never been dead.
E'reway in the oneymay.
E'reway in the oneymay.
Old man dedeessionpray,
you are oughthray, oo you've oneday.
E'reway in the oneymay.
E'reway in the oneymay.
Old man dedeessionpray,
you are oughthray, oo you've oneday wrong.
