

Storyteller, The "The Secret's Revealed"

Visit "The Secret's Revealed" on MotoLyrics.com

Although our travelers had seen a lot of horrible things during their journey, nothing would prepare them for what they were about to see when they entered the village... Women and children were slaughtered like cattle. On giant poles, warriors and old men were impaled, and all around the village there was a very thick and dark fog. Never before had they seen such cruelty, and no one,
not even the brave dwarf could keep the tears from falling. There was no doubt that the army of darkness had paid a visit to this village. And by the damage made to the village they were quite sure that the dark side had found the book of mystery.
That was the only thing capable of doing this kind of damage.

Suddenly! Someone cried out in agony! The travelers froze for a few seconds... were the dark army still around the area? The air was quiet... but there! Behind that old ruin! Someone was moving. They all ran towards the ruin, and what they saw came as a shock to them.

There was a survivor. A woman, bruised and beaten, but still alive. As they began to speak to her it turned out that she was one of a warrior clan with a mission of guarding the book of mystery. Obviously they had failed. Someone inside the clan had betrayed

them, and sold the information to the evil one, and therefore the book of mystery was now in the hands of the dark side.

She had sworn an oath to guard the book, and to the gods she now swore to bring it back to the sorcerers of light, no matter what. So when they left the village they had one more traveler by their side, and her name was Kira the Guardian.

Soldiers were coming far from the hills To seek the magic we concealed My people were slaughtered, taken as slaves
To work until their dying days

But I know that one day
I will see victory
That's why I'll follow you
That's why I won't give in Yes I know that one day
I will see victory
That's why I'll follow you
That's why I won't give in

So now that it's taken, it won't be long Before their powers will be strong Using the magic that's in the book Their reign shall grow, the dark will rise

But I know that one day
I will see victory...

And as we leave the place that was my home
That now is laid in ruins
I swore an oath to restore the book of light again
And take it were it is safe
From all greed, from the dark, and misery

So follow my footsteps, and have no fear I'll be your guide through the shadows Always be ready, always be sharp
If we shall survive in the dark

But I know that one day
I will see victory...

