"She Came On"

she came on like a storm
from the blind side of a memory soft and warm, left me seasick on the shore she believed she could prove it was her world that i needed but i left her for someone i wanted more CHORUS
always using clever words to hide the truth communicating in the ignorance of youth still i believe that my illusions are realities within confusion
i accept the consequence for lack of innocence she was warm, sunshine bright fun in games and situations got it good, always answering just because by the shade on the streets waking up from perfect dreaming is when i realized i want but never worked
always using clever words to hide the truth
confusion
i accept the consequence for lack of innocence, yeah
yet she believed she could prove
but i left her for someone i wanted more
i wanted more
i wanted more
i wanted more
